

Thinking of a gift to give her?
Why not try the Fryeburg Fliver?

The Fliver is never, but never a nuisance.
It is sometimes noisy, but never annoys.
It is a measure of sunshine and pleasure
in the old "gloom" of winter.

Editorial

The Conway Box Co. plant has suspended operations until April 1st. More than 100 men are out of work on that day, and they are apt to be footed.

The men, who are trying to adapt themselves to half a loaf, when they are getting half the time are trying to figure out the time of their loaf, now that they are getting a "full loaf."

However, notwithstanding that business is nearly at a standstill in this usual spring lull, there is a real estate market, which is rapidly approaching "proportions." Lifelong home-owners are selling their holdings for less than they were willing to sell, and finders are snapping up, and rents are being paid for the town pieces, desirable rents are being paid for the town pieces, and the land is being sold for more than the land-owners would have been willing to sell (providing the land has a conscience).

These dwellings are quoted at several times their assessed valuation, and finders are snapping up, and rents are being paid for the town pieces, desirable rents are being paid for the town pieces, and the land is being sold for more than the land-owners would have been willing to sell (providing the land has a conscience).

But the historic Oak edifice, with its picturesque gables overlooking the farm-grounds of the Corn Shop Brook, is listed for sale.

"Pine" Sawyer has invested in a house on O'Leary street, "West" Hubbard has sold his holdings on Main St. and "West" has moved several times and Mrs. Hubbard will soon be packing her boxes and leaving another cupboard full of things she has become accustomed to, but she will make no "bones" over it.

Chas. Smith and Ben Brown are ready to have sold their respective homes.

Arthur Hodson and Frank "Pearson" Stevens are preparing to build a new house on the same lot, and David Charles will also have a rent ready for occupancy as soon as the snows leave.

Although not necessarily superstitious, we are glad that the town fathers believe in signs, as the Fliver Ed. has a big batch of "om" to paint this spring. We believe in good signs, but if you want a sign, had, we can easily paint it that way. If you need a wood, glass, galvanized or electric sign, step in, we'll adjust our glasses, galvanize into action and electrify you.

Smith St. Smiles
The Husky Hikers enjoyed a fishing trip to Lovell's Pond one day recently. The fishes enjoyed it, too, as none of "om" got hooked.

"Boner" C. D. Ridlon of Rice Hotel is thinking of putting a "shingle" out, as a private instructor of the ukulele and emotional music. Proprietor Tom sees now where he should have in years gone by, applied that shingle to the seat of "Boner's" emotions and cured the young man of any such notions.

Though birds may sing of the beautiful snow, we'll sing the most when we see it go. On snow, to date, we have been "well fed," and we long to feel "fed" instead. Although we do not "oil" complain, about the weather, our dear old Maine, still I tell you, it takes the "starch" out of the grass, and in March, and I for one won't pause to weep, when the grass peeps through and the robins chirp.

Fryeburg Academy
The debating teams which defeated Brighton last week should be given due praise. Of course we don't expect, in school life that a winning debating team should be accorded a demonstration on the campus, bonfires or ringing of bells, as would be accorded a victorious base ball team, yet to think clearly and argue forcefully before an audience in these practice debates, is helping to cultivate qualities of self confidence, unimpaired by the heat of the moment, which even the champion batter of the nine, might envy in years to come.

"It is God that girdeth me with strength and maketh my way perfect." Mrs. Leighton took dinner with Mrs. Jones, on Sunday.

On Thursday evening a circle was held at the vestry, with a good crowd, considering the weather. After supper a very fine Lenten service was enjoyed, with Mr. Bull at the piano. This is one of the series of Lenten services being held at the churches of the "Larger Parish."

On March 20, Round Mountain Grange held its regular meeting, with good attendance. Everyone was glad to welcome "Uncle Ike" Wardwell, who has been shut in with a broken limb for several months. The ladies had a "feed." They thought they did a big thing, and they did, but by certain whispers, winks and head shakings, it looked as if the men thought they could beat it next meeting. Go to it! We'll be there with our biggest appetites! We hope every granger, who can, will be there, for it would be too bad not to do justice to their "lay-out."

A good program is also in the make-up with two fine questions for discussion.

Birch Rock Camp
R. W. Sanderson has sold to William R. Browder and Bartlett W. Boyden of Newton, Mass., a lot of land on Lake McWain, where they will erect the buildings for a large boys' camp, as soon as the season permits. These gentlemen are instructors in the Country Day School in Newton and have had several years' experience in boys' camps. They report excellent prospects for their first season. Their program in addition to the usual camp activities includes practical wood-craft and forestry, riding, with special attention to the physical development of the boys, along the same lines as Camp McWain for girls. The report that these gentlemen would build a camp on Lake Penesseewassee at Norway was premature.

Maine Towns' People
Responded Well

Fifty Per Cent. Increase Over Last Year

From reports already received from the towns and cities making appropriations for the public fund for the Maine Development Association, everything indicates that the drive is well over the top and that it will be 50 per cent. in excess of last year's appropriations.

Of the 407 towns in the State, reports received to date from 110 which have voted, include 55 towns which made no appropriation last year but have come in with liberal appropriations this year. To date only four towns in the State which made appropriations last year failed to do so this year. They are Skidauish, Bethel, Porter and York. Many of the towns and cities have yet to vote but reports from the County Chairmen indicate they will go well over the top with larger appropriations than last year and those cities and towns who made no appropriation last year will do so this year. This is the first direct barometer that those in charge of the State Development program have had to get the true reaction of the people of the State as to the working of the work being done to develop the State along Agricultural, Industrial and Recreational lines.

If the action of the people of the State voting at the town meetings can be taken as a true indication of their faith in the beneficial results already received by the publicity campaign, it shows that Maine is united in the work to put Maine in its proper place among the leaders of the states of the Union for future development and industrial and agricultural expansion.

Already the other New England states are sitting up and taking notice as to the results the Maine campaign has brought about and are modelling similar plans after the Maine program. The news and editorial comments in the various New England papers all unite in praise of the foresight and initiative of Maine, and call upon their respective states to "go and do likewise."

If anyone doubts the results of the campaign in Maine and its beneficial results, the last Government reports from Savings Banks and Trust Companies deposits in the State is the best answer as to whether the citizens are undergoing a period of prosperity. These total over $10,000,000 in excess of last year.

It is confidently expected that the work done will bring the largest number of out-of-state visitors to Maine the coming summer than ever before.

SAVE THE SURFACE
More and more are cities surface their main streets and thoroughfares with asphalt. There are four primary reasons for this: the durability of asphalt, its good appearance, relatively low initial cost and almost total absence of maintenance charges—none streets having asphalt surfaces which have been laid for 20 years, with no maintenance whatever.

Fifth Avenue, New York City, has a six-inch Portland cement concrete base
with three inches of asphaltic binder,
and sheet asphalt surface.

Boston, Massachusetts puts an asphalt top on the old macadam on Commonwealth Avenue, thus saving the entire first investment.

Rhode Island Pine Tree
State Club Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Rhode Island Pine Tree State club was held Friday evening, March 19, in the Trinity Community House, Trinity Square, Providence.

The attendance, about seventy-five,
was small owing to the prevalent sickness in this section. The president, Charles H. Greston, gave an enthusiastic and vivid account of his recent winter
visit to Maine and the scenes of his boy-hood. The program consisted further of soprano and tenor solos and duets by Mrs. Helen G. Place and William W. De-Roin. A social hour followed and refreshments of doughnuts (the Maine variety), cheese and coffee were served.

The club will hold a special whist,
dance and frolic, Thursday evening, April eighth at the church of the Mediator, Elmwood Avenue, Providence.

The next regular meeting will be upon Friday evening, April 16th at the Trinity Community House.

Sunday School Lesson

Lesson for March 28

REVIEW—THE GOSPEL OF JOHN

REVIEW—The Gospel of John. GOLDEN TEXT—These are written, that ye may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing ye may have life in His name. —John 20:31. PRIMARY TOPIC—Beautiful Stories in John's Gospel. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Great Scenes in John's Gospel. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Great Teachings of John's Gospel.

Happily we have come to one time at least when the quarterly review is easy and a pleasure. The teacher's supreme aim should be to make Jesus as real to his pupils as He was to the disciples when here upon earth, for the "Word made flesh" is now dwelling among us "full of grace and truth" revealing God (John 1:14, 18). The best way to "recall the quarter's lessons" will be to grasp the central purpose of John in writing his book, gather the central teaching of each separate lesson and use it in proving the central proposition. John clearly states his purpose in 20:31. Two things are set forth in this verse.

1. That Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God.
2. That through believing in Him, eternal life is received.

It should be the teacher's aim to establish this truth and to accomplish this glorious purpose in the lives of all his pupils.

January 3.—In this lesson Jesus is presented as the eternal Word existing with God before all worlds, the almighty Creator, the source of light and life, made flesh in order to reveal God to man.

January 10.—John the Baptist testifies that Jesus is the Lamb of God. This truth was certified unto him by a voice from heaven and the descent of the Holy Spirit upon Him (Matt. 3:16, 17). Andrew, Philip and Nathaniel corroborate John's testimony by declaring that Jesus is the Messiah of whom Moses and the prophets did write—the very Son of God.

January 17.—Jesus is the bestower of eternal life. He is the only begotten Son of the Father, who gives eternal life to those who believe on Him. Jesus said alone can give life, Jesus is divine.

January 24.—Jesus testifies to the Samaritan woman that He is the Messiah. His ability to disclose the secrets of the woman's heart and convince her that He is divine.

January 31.—The creative act by which five thousand men, besides women and children, were fed from a few small loaves and fishes, with a superabundance left over, demonstrates the deity of Jesus.

February 7.—Jesus is divine, because He opened the eyes of the man born blind. So unusual was this miracle that such a thing was never heard of "since the world began." The man whose eyes were opened, confessed Jesus and worshipped Him as the Son of God.

February 14.—Jesus is the Messiah, the Son of God, because He is the Good Shepherd. In the Old Testament, Jehovah is set forth as the "true Shepherd" (Ps. 23, Ezek. 34). The shepherd devotes his life to the welfare of his sheep, even to the extent of laying down his life for them. This Jesus did, therefore He is the promised Messiah.

February 21.—Jesus is divine because at His command, Lazarus, a man dead four days, was raised to life.

February 28.—Undivided love to God is man's supreme obligation. The Second Commandment is like unto the first. In that it centers in love.

March 7.—Jesus is divine, because He came from God and went to God (John 1:3). Though Jesus boldly claimed to be the Lord, yet He stooped to render the most menial service to His disciples.

March 14.—Jesus claimed equality with God and the great apostles His disciples to place their faith in Him as the divine being, just the same as in God.

March 21.—Jesus proved His deity by coming forth from the grave. This is the unquestioned seal of His deity.

Water of Life

If ye know what He is preparing for you ye would be too glad. He is not, it may be, give you a full draught till ye come up to the well-head and drink, ye, drink abundantly, of the pure river of the water of life that proceedeth out from the throne of God and from the Lamb.—Samuel Rutherford.

Moody on Enthusiasm

Enthusiasm means "in God"; and I can't understand how any man can realize his standing before God and not be on fire 365 days in the year. Any man who goes into business and doesn't throw his heart into it doesn't succeed. Now, why not go into the Lord's work as earnestly as into athletics?—D. L. Moody.

Purpose of Prayer

The purpose of prayer is to get God's will done.—S. D. Gordon.

The What's the Use Club

Greatest American Organization Now in Its Most Flourishing Condition

By DON C. SEITZ—Reprinted from the Outlook

While the United States is beyond all other lands in the extent of organizations with a big O, its greatest agglomeration is unorganized, in the sense that it has no president, vice-president, honorary president, or a well-paid secretary. Despite this dispiriting fact, it leads in membership and grows apace. This is the "What's the Use Club." Voters alone are eligible, and about fifty per cent of this class in the country belong. There are no charter members, no directors, and no meetings. It is the easiest club to join, and therefore the most popular. I forgot to say that there are no dues except those the devil is expected to pay.

One of the popular features of the club is that the person who desires to join needs no proposer or second. No membership committee holds inquest on him, meticulously measuring his merits. Acceptance of the motto is the sole test of eligibility. Having ascertained that the "Use" initiation is over, and he is she (for women have here the same privileges as men) becomes at once a full-fledged, working member.

The beauty of the slogan is that it covers every impulse that can be checked, is peculiarly adapted to public affairs, and can even be extended to religious or charitable activities. Its widest field is in exorcising non-appearance at the polls or abstaining from attendance at church.

Some idea of the extent of its membership can be gained by election-day figures. There are 35,000,000 members of the club, men and women in America of voting age. Only 20,000,000 of them put ballots in the boxes at the last general election.

This easy way of avoiding the duty of voting has become a national habit. It is quoted their membership in the club as a reason. "What's the use?" ends all argument. When the critic is faced with this query, he is stumped. "What's the use?" he pleads himself. He cannot answer the question.

The root of the club is found in an earlier slogan, "Let George do it." When George became too busy, "What's the use?" of doing it at all. "What's the use?" of doing it at all. "What's the use?" of doing it at all.

There will, perhaps, be a thrill of horror when the opinion is expressed that Civil Service reform has had much to do with the part of public employment which is away from the partisan and turned over to a privileged class, protected in their places by law, as no one is in private employment with comfortable pensions ahead at the end of a very reasonable term of service.

The favored holders of these places—and they include policemen, firemen, clerks, and all minor officials, including second-class postmasters and assistant postmasters in first-class offices—soon so identify themselves against the people at large. Thus they become potent before Congress and State Legislatures.

Loyalty to a party brings nothing in the way of reward to the ordinary citizen who but for this system might get an occasional bite out of the public crib. Instead, he is denied a look in except by the long process of examinations and a waiting list that consists mostly of waits. There are no rewards for virtue, no promotion for merit, no advancement for ability. So ambition fails and he joins the club.

So we have a super-government that cannot be reached by any form of extension of the public crib. As one out of every twelve persons in the U. S. is in gainful employment in some sort of public pay-roll, they constitute a formidable barrier to all this, real issues do not exist in tangible form. Those who remain with their party do so, right or wrong. The independent element is too small to swing the balance. The great power lies with the What's the Use Club, whose members do not go to the polls or affiliate with any party. Thanks to the club, these are becoming more and more difficult to reach.

Through infinite processes of legislation, most matters of consequence, as well as the officers, have been taken away from the people, with the great exception of the two great parties. The reform could and should be a great issue. It has been canned in the hands of a tariff commission owned by beneficiaries.

With small offices withheld from the people and large ones administered in the main by mediocrities, the country is at a stalemate. It can no longer create or correct by its party method. The attempts to act by third-party movements have been failures. Groups within the existing parties have been the resulting outcome, but cannot produce results.

Stoner, or later we must create some method by which issues can be brought swiftly and simply before the people. If this is not done we can only look forward to increased mediocrity in the club and the complete destruction of popular government.

Henry Clay an Imitator

Not Originator of Tariff Political Issue is Clark's Persistent Statement

Editor of Norway Advertiser: I was gratified at seeing my comment on Henry Clay in the Advertiser of February 12, for it shows that the "Judge" White would soon be better. The paper had told of him being ill. You taught me years ago that we should not publish anything which might be construed as a criticism of a person too sick to make his own reply. It is a good thing to do, as I now know, on my own account, and I was glad to realize that the Judge was getting along so nicely.

I was also glad to notice in the Advertiser of March 19, his fuller interpretation of his statement about Henry Clay being the creator of the American doctrine of a protective tariff. In that, I am dealing with matters that have been poorly treated by the writers of history. I believed that very thing about Henry Clay until a few years ago when a single sentence in a lecture by Harvard College's eminent professor of history, Albert Bushnell Hart, amazed me with an extraordinary book of history were very deficient in the story of American national financial legislation. I did not dare to criticise the like Professor Hart, so I took the pains to look the matter up in Boston's great public library.

The first upset of my belief was the discovery that R. W. Thompson's "The History of Protective Tariffs" is a grossly incomplete work, really a political tract written. I had already discovered that it had a plethora of words, and then learned that it also had anemic ideas and facts.

The father of the American Protective Tariff Policy was Alexander Hamilton, and the first man to make it a partisan political issue was Congressman Thomas Fitzsimmons of Pennsylvania. Mr. Fitzsimmons (name also sometimes spelled Fitzsimons) was elected to the first Congress under the Constitution, after having made a career in which he sided the voters to support him because of his determination to make a fight for a protective tariff. Others did the same thing, and finally John C. Calhoun made it a national political issue. Clay, as a protectionist, "played second fiddle" to Calhoun until the famous South Carolina secession, when he made a remarkable reversal of his position.

Clay picked up Calhoun's discarded trousers, and made a career of his own. He was a man of great energy and good character for himself. Such action was characteristic of Clay, for the story of his career is that of a man who was always trying to gain preference by policy rather than by principle. He was a man of great energy and good character for himself. Such action was characteristic of Clay, for the story of his career is that of a man who was always trying to gain preference by policy rather than by principle.

Before the Judge writes his eulogy of Clay, will he please read the platform adopted by Clay White party, who on Clay's influence, to see how much real protective principle they espouse—not one such platform, but all of them. Will he also please make some research on early American tariff history and American political campaigns before Clay entered public life. He depicts the state of affairs as it was many times told, and as I implicitly believe myself and a chance remark of six or seven words by a man who is an authority on our history caused me to do some genuine research on the subject of the commonly accepted versions.

By the way, Mr. Editor, when is the Judge going to give us some more of his "what-ifs" for persons and things? I would be delighted to read the next best of them weekly. They are well worth while to me and probably to hundreds of other Advertiser readers.
